Net Assets Of Late Maxine Elliot Valued At $1,140,065

Maxine Elliott, actress, who died in her chateau in France on March 5, 1940, left a net estate of $1,140,065, the bulk of which goes to her sister, Lady Gertrude Forbes-Robertson, of England, according to a tax appraisal filed in New York Thursday. The appraisal listed gross assets at $1,359,132.

Miss Elliott held a wide variety of stocks and municipal bonds. These were listed at $1,224,795 and included 1,500 shares of the Elliott Theater Company, which owns the Maxine Elliott Theater. This stock is valued at $135,528. Assets of the company included an indebtedness of Miss Elliott amounting to $125,528. Her total debts were listed at $131,291.

Miscellaneous assets included her French chateau, valued at $27,000, and bank accounts in France amounting to $28,106, although the executors said they had not been able to realize on either of these and considered their value "highly problematical."

An affidavit noted that securities, valued at $62,240, had been transferred by Miss Elliott to Lady Forbes-Robertson in 1929 and 1934. Besides Lady Forbes-Robertson, who inherits the theater stock and the income for life from three-fifths of the residue, beneficiaries are four nieces: Maxine Miles and Jean van Gysegem, of England; Mrs. Vincent Sheehan, of 215 East Seventy-second street, the former Diana Forbes-Robertson, and Chloe Forbes-Robertson, of 62 Montague street, Brooklyn.

Rev. Edward M. Dart of Summerville, S. C., who still calls Rockland his home by virtue of the fact that his mother (the former Adelaide Crocker) comes from this city, called at the office of Representative Margaret Chase Smith while in Washington recently, while on his way to Toledo, where he had a preaching engagement at Trinity Church. Mr. Dart left word at the Congressional office that he will be delighted to have Knox County service men visit him in Summerville at the Rectory.

PREMIER STALIN FORGETS
The Allied Nations were in full sympathy with the Russians this week when they triumphantly celebrated the 25th anniversary of the Red Army, but into the celebration came the discordant note struck by Joseph Stalin when he declared that "Russia was carrying the whole weight of the war because of the lack of a second front." The statement of the Russian Premier was inspired no doubt by the tremendously costly effort which has been made by his countrymen in driving back the invading German horde. Nobody can seek to discount the splendid work of the Reds, and its inestimable value to the other Allied Nations, but while the second front has not materialized, as far as Europe is concerned, Premier Stalin cannot overlook the timely aid rendered by America under the lend-lease provisions, the continuous attacks from the air made by the R.A.F. and American forces, and the strenuous battles being waged by the British, American, and French forces in various theatres of war. Premier Stalin should also remember that the Russians are fighting in their own back yard, regaining territory they had lost, while the Americans at least have been forced to transport troops and supplies to the other side of the world. The accomplishments of the other Allied Nations are not on a par with Russia's, and without seeking to detract from their glory the above are a few of the excellent reasons.

LETTERS TO THE SERVICEMEN
Because of the space it requires, and the countless repetition involved, The Courier-Gazette is obliged to omit from its "Working For Victory" column the statement "he would be pleased to hear from his friends." Readers should take it for granted that men in the service wish to hear from home, it means so much to them in the far-off, lonely countries. While The Courier-Gazette "fills the bill" as far as general news is concerned, the men who are fighting the Allied Nations' cause hanker for the intimate home news and domestic affairs which naturally do not find their way into the service column. Write often, and write those things your boy desires to know.

HOGGING THE FOOD SUPPLY
We cannot help wondering at the frontery and unpatriotic attitude of the Philadelphia family of three which declared 4502 excess cans of food in its application for War Ration Book No. 2. All the 72 eight-point coupons of the three books were removed, leaving a total of 4430 eight-pointers to be taken from subsequent ration books. It was estimated that at the current rate of monthly coupon use, it would take the family more than 41 years to supply the coupons remaining to be deducted. There are afloat some uncomfortable rumors concerning one or two local families' supply, but nothing which approximates the Philadelphia story.

WHY WE SLEEP LESS
We all hope we are doing our duty as far as rationing is concerned, and we all hope to do it again when the next black-out test comes, but the feeling of the average citizen, as he studies the rules, and listens to the advice, is akin to that of the High School student who first wrestles with the mysteries and intricacies of the higher mathematics.

REVOLUTION IN THE KITCHEN
The food shortages and the rationing may combine to make American consumers feel they are on wartime basis, but this is only partially true. To be fully co-operative in helping the farmer save the world from famine, American housewives will have to learn there are foods expensive in terms of labor, no less than in money. For many years the American housewife has been urged to find many of her food values in daily products, meats, eggs, and vegetables that require many man-hours to produce and handle. The switch must now be made to find these nutritional factors in easily grown cereals and potatoes, with mixed-in proteins from field vegetables, such as soya-bean flour.

Well-balanced meals, replete with essential values, can be prepared from foods cheaper in terms of labor. The stringencies of rationing will doubtless turn the thoughts of housewives in these directions. The Government, the newspapers, and other agencies must co-operate in presenting accurate information on this subject, for it actually means a revolution in most of the kitchens of America. Many of the eating habits and favored recipes of a generation must be set aside.

Special care and thought might well be given to kitchen suggestions that will retain for American women much of the freedom from long hours over sink and range that they have gained in recent years. Already some are learning that many fruits and vegetables require little or no cooking or preparation before going on the table.—Christian Science Monitor.

FIRE AT THE SNOW SHIPYARDS

Caused Damage Of Possibly $300,000 Last Night—No Ships Damaged

A spectacular fire of undetermined origin destroyed two large buildings at the Snow Shipyards last night, with a loss estimated by Fred C. Gatcombe, general manager, and Jesse E. Bradstreet, treasurer and chief accountant, at between $250,000 and $350,000.

Mr. Bradstreet, assisted by Stanley Payson, Mrs. Hilma Storer and Mrs. Ethel R. Perry, had just completed making up payrolls at about 6.40, when Mr. Payson said he smelled smoke. Mr. Bradstreet opened the door to the corridor at the head of the main stairway and saw smoke and sparks down the stairway.

The four made their way to safety by a rear stairway, Mr. Bradstreet taking with him the check book and cash book and Mrs. Storer closing and locking the company safe, before they departed.

Mr. Bradstreet also took time to telephone the fire station. Calls to the department were also made by Second Class Seaman Frank Rodway of Portland, U. S. Coast Guard, and Albert Robbins, a traveling watchman for the yard.

Manley Spearin, timekeeper for the electrical workers, was also in his office across the corridor from the office used by Mr. Bradstreet. He escaped by the back stairway along with the others.

Mrs. Elsa H. Constantine, employed as file clerk in the perpetual inventory department, left for her home nearby at 6.20 and did not smell any smoke out of the ordinary.

The fire department was quickly on the scene with all apparatus and the fire was also fought by Coast Guard fire boat. Nearly 300 men from the Naval Base and the Coast Guard were on hand to assist in moving vessels and policing the yard. None of the vessels under construction were damaged. Coast Guard boats moved the large salvage boat R. S. 17, from where it was tied up at the southern side of the dock. The salvage boat was brought back to the wharf as soon as the fire was under control. A house at one end of a 75-ton crane was badly damaged.

Employees of the company came on duty this morning.

Get Interesting Message From Red Cross Chairman—The Forgotten Man

When Keryn ap Rice fails to discussing Red Cross matters he seldom knows where or when to stop, and that was the case at the Lions meeting Wednesday, when he arose to speak for five minutes, failed to notice the clock, and talked Chief of Police Laurence K. Mansfield right out of his place at bat. The pleasure of hearing the obliging chief is merely deferred, however.

In the absence of Vice President Ernest O. Kenyon, who was busy with clerical matters in Portland, Sam Savitt presided, and the "Old Gray Mare" table performed its customary function, with the addition of the newfound soprano to the chorus.

It was voted to pay the international dues of members in the armed service that they may retain their membership.

Captain Rice told of the changing activities of the Knox County Red Cross Chapter and expressed its regret at the resignation of Frederic Bird, after two faithful and efficient years' of service as chairman of the War Fund drive. He also expressed pleasure at the choice of his successor, Robert C. Gregory, a past president of the Lions Club.

The Knox County quota in the drive beginning next week is $18,800 and Rockland's share is $7345, a little more than was actually raised last year, when there were separate drives for membership and war fund.

Chairman Rice explained clearly and in considerable detail the paramount duties which confront the Chapter this year, one being

The editor of the Christian Science Monitor comes to the defense of the vest as a portion of man's raiment, on the ground of the storage space which it provides. If a man insists upon carrying the contents of a stationery store around on his person that would be a valid argument. The reader has doubtless seen many such—carrying four or five pencils, a fountain pen, old bills (receipted, I hope), four or five cigars, etc., etc. Much of that junk could otherwise be disposed of. As for me,—and that doesn't matter much to anybody else—I have not worn a vest for 15 or 20 years. Winter or Summer—and I have not known anyone who has removed that apparel for any length of time to ever replace it. I had as soon be handcuffed as to again be burdened with a vest.

Mrs. Victor Mackie of Long Cove, has four other sons in the service and her last went in Thursday. Before going he understood the only shoes he would have to work shoes in the service so he took his coupon and last money to buy some dress shoes and three pounds of sugar for his mother. He says they were stolen in a store on Park street where he was about to take the bus. The meanest thief will never die, it appears.

My thanks go to Mrs. Carrie Nash of 11 Trinity street for a copy of the Rockland Opinion dated Sept. 23, 1881. It presents an unusual appearance because of the turned rules between the columns—an emblem of mourning for the death of President Garfield, who was the victim of an assassin's bullet. Typical of weekly newspapers of that date it carried only two columns about the national tragedy, while on the same page carried three full columns about a crime in Warren, where a young man had shot his mother-in-law and his own infant child, killing both, and then dangerously wounding his wife.

Woodbury M. Snow was summoned Tuesday to the Sheriff's office where he gave a clever demonstration of splicing a painter which had parted under a strain. The work met the special approval of Register of Probate Willis the surgical dressings department and the other the home service program.

There will be Red Cross sewing Wednesday at 10.30 at the Methodist Church. Luncheon served at noon under direction of Mrs. Lena Stevens, Mrs. Vincie Clark, Mrs. Ivy Chatto and Mrs. Minnie Cross. At the evening meeting of the Womens Society membership pledges will take the place of devotion.

The business of gathering muskels for canning has begun in earnest in Pleasant Point. Everett Davis brought in the first load of 20 baskets Tuesday. Politics makes strange bedfellows; the war makes strange eatables.

Tires? Gas? Poo! Those little items just don't register with Gerald Ames, Vernon Ames and Charles Howe, Jr., of Union. No such shortages are going to keep those lads shackled evidently, for they used their trusty bikes this week on a trip to Rockland, returning home tired and happy after their 16-mile trek.

Looking at him, nobody would ever suspect that Archie Smalley of Tenant's Harbor is an octogenarian. Twenty-nine of his 80 years have been given to the service of the Sea and Shore Fisheries department, and the tireless fish warden can walk from morning to night with the best of them. Once upon a time Mr. Smalley was a school teacher, and he smiles every time he thinks how he once got even with the woman who taught him. Fond of snakes he caught a lively wriggler, crawled in through a back window and deposited it in his teacher's desk. When she lifted the cover next morning out flopped the imprisoned snake into her lap, and the scene which followed brought great joy to the mischievous Archie.

THOSE WINDSHIPS—THE YANKEE CLIPPERS

These splendid Ships, each with her grace, her glory, Her memory of old song or comrade's story. Still in my mind the image of life's need, Beauty in hardest action, beauty in deed "They built great ships and sailed them" sounds most brave Whatever arts we have or fall to have; I touch my country's mind, I come to grips With half her purpose, thinking of these ships. That are untouched by softness, all that line Drawn ringing hard to stand the test of brine, That nobleness and grandeur, all that beauty Born of a manly life and bitter duty, That splendor of fine bows which yet could stand The shock of rollers never checked by land. That art of masts, sail crowded, fit to break. Yet stayed to strength and backstayed into rake. The life demanded by that art, the keen Rye-puckered hard-case seamen, silent, lean. They are grander things than all the art of towns. Their tests are tempests and the sea that drowns. They are my country's line, her great art done. By strong brains labouring on the thought unwon. They mark our passage as a race of men. Earth will not see such ships as those again. —John Masefield.

Book Review

(By K. S. F.)

The Weir. Author Ruth Moore. Published by William Morrow & Company, New York.

To have reviewed at this period of cold winter, a novel of the Maine Coast is most pleasing and far reaching in its tendency to cheer readers into the fact that warm summer days are on their way back again; with all the glorious delights of a Maine Coast season. This first novel by Ruth Moore, "The Weir," takes the reader through experiences that show a powerful vitality in the author's vision and reading of characters and situations.

These are living, breathing Maine personalities and pictures of the atmosphere and life in some island homes of the Maine coast. Especially is this true of the older generation, when both men and women were worn and tired wrestling with problems of sea and land. Few neighbors and few contacts in earlier days with a broader life and people, gave some of these families ingrown trends of thinking and lack of control of temperaments. Little culture leads to selfish desires, and cloudy weather follows violent outbreaks in hearts.

Miss Moore makes no suggestion that this story is the usual outgrowth of life—but just like other parts of the world—tragedy and melodrama enter.

The climax shows keen artistry in skillful handling of these families—hard working, salty and rugged.

Boy Scout Troop 208 Had Thirty Guests On That Occasion

Open night was observed by Boy Scout Troop 208 of the First Baptist Church.

Twenty-nine boys and five officers assembled to observe the 33d anniversary of Scouting. Troop inspection by junior officers was followed by an investiture service in which nine new scouts were admitted to membership.

Demonstrations in signaling and first aid proved very interesting. A service plaque bearing eleven stars was unveiled in honor to troop members and former members now in the service.

Those in service are: Former Scoutmaster Gerald Beverage, U.S.N.
Former Assistant Scoutmaster Winifred Kent Stanley, U.S.A.
Assistant Scoutmaster Douglas G. Mills, U.S.A.

Former Jr. Assistant Scoutmaster Ernest Harrington, U.S.N.
P. L. and First Aid Instructor Albert D. Mills, Jr., U.S.A.

P. L. Star Scout Lewis Tatham, Jr., U.S.A.
Scout Richard Ames, U.S.A.
Scout Carleton Wooster, U.S.A.
Scout Robert Cross, U.S.A.
Scout Richard Brown, U.S.N.

The evening entertainment closed with colors, taps being played by Lewis Tatham, Jr. There were 30 guests present.

LINCOLN AT ROCKLAND

The Lincoln Academy aggregation will make an invasion of Rockland High at the Community Building tonight for the Knox-Lincoln League final. The Rockland combine will have to win this game in order to stay in first place with Thomaston.

The Rockland girls are hoping to defeat the Lincoln lassies, who have already clinched the title, in what should be a thrilling ball game. The Rockland sextet has made a grand showing this season but because of a bad break at the first of the season they failed to catch up with the league leader. Their record of 8 wins and 2 defeats proves they have a top team.—By R. Jones.

TOAST TO THE NAVY

Afar on the dim horizon
A gray ship greets the dawn,
Its decks are cleared for action
By men of brains and brawn.
To a rendezvous with Victory
It proudly sails along
A ship of the Yankee Navy
Her flag a Nation's song.

Alloft in the eerie azure
Gray eagles fearless fly
Eyes of a mighty squadron—
Avengers of the sky.
Gilding swiftly on and on—
Pirates of the Yankee Navy
Their deeds with the stars belong
On the ships of the Yankee Navy
A million freemen serve
Sons of the farm and city
Boys of faith and nerve
So, a toast to the lads of the Navy
On this, their Navy's day.
They're a rendezvous with victory—
Let's cheer them on their way.

Pleasure Driving or Home Heating

Car owners in Rockland and Knox County are congratulated by Morris B. Perry, chairman of the Rockland War Price and Rationing Board, for their part in helping the East Coast save 30,000 barrels of gasoline a day through the ban on non-essential driving. Pointing out that this saving is making possible more space in tank cars and motor trucks for transporting home heating oil in this area, the Ration Board Chairman emphasized the importance of continuing, and increasing, if possible, the saving at least during the crucial winter weeks immediately ahead.

"I know that the fine co-operation which our own citizens have given the drive has played a vital part in the success of the ban throughout the East where lack of transportation has made petroleum supplies desperately short this winter," Mr. Perry said. "The response of the great majority of the motoring public shows how we can meet problems when we are faced with the need for action."

"I think no one will dispute my belief that there is no choice between driving for fun or convenience, and heating homes or keeping war plants running, and that is exactly what we are up against. Until warm weather sets in it will be necessary to use every available tank car for fuel oil to heat homes and operate industrial plants doing war work. That means less gasoline can be brought in."

The estimate that the East Coast ban on non-essential driving was saving 30,000 barrels a day was made in Washington recently by Prentiss N. Brown, OPA Administrator. The estimate was based on reports from the petroleum industry showing that at various points along the East Coast passenger car gasoline consumption has fallen off from 15 percent to 25 percent since the ban went into effect early in January. The Price Administrator at that time, paid tribute to the cooperative spirit of the American people in commenting upon the success of the emergency measure.

Mr. Brown also explained that our petroleum supply situation in the Eastern area is critical and promises to remain so for the next month or six weeks. "It is necessary," he added, "to have this curtailment in order to keep the value of fuel oil coupons as high as possible."

The Weather

The people of Rockland who had gathered the impression that Spring had come, were no further astray than the Old Farmers Almanac which prophesied "warmer" for today. The temperature of 5 above, and a northeast breeze sweeping across from the Samoset hardly deserves that optimistic classification, but as we caught the almanac making a correct guess the other day its general average is not bad. It was just 123 years ago today that Napoleon escaped from somewhere or other. Hope he had on his red flannels and ryesherman earlappers.

Ernest C. Davis

Former Member of Fuller-Cobb-Davis Dies At An Advanced Age

Funeral services for Ernest C. Davis, one of Rockland's best known citizens who died Tuesday will be held at the family residence on Broadway at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Davis was born in Rockland, July 27, 1857, son of Charles M. and Sarah (Atkins) Davis. He attended the public schools when "Daddy" Payne was superintendent and at conclusion of studies there attended the Payne private school. He came to Rockland as a young boy and clerked in Capt. Henry Wilson's candy store at the South End.

About 10 years later he entered upon his career in the department store of Fuller & Cobb, destined to eventually become a member of that firm, with his name added. The store was located at that time in the Spear block bounded by Main, Park and Oak streets. The proprietors were the late William O. Fuller Sr. and the late Nelson B. Cobb.

The concern's first move was to The Brook in the building then known as Farwell Opera House. It was while housed in this structure that there occurred the disastrous fire which practically ruined H. H. Crie & Son's store, adjoining. The Fuller & Cobb store in the basement, was badly damaged by water, and had to be removed to the upper floor.

Then came the construction of Syndicate block at the corner of Main and Oak streets and there are living today hundreds of Rockland citizens who attended the Fuller & Cobb opening there. The firm occupied part of the new block at first, and eventually the entire building, the establishment being widely known as one of the best department stores in Maine. Adding greatly to its prestige was the "Furs and ready to wear department" over which Mr. Davis presided for 55 years. Such an excellent reputation did it enjoy that Summer visitors over a wide radius deferred their purchases in furs until they had reached Rockland.

Mr. Davis became a member of the concern in 1890 and the firm style became Fuller-Cobb-Davis. Three or four times a year, for a period of 38 years Mr. Davis visited the New York markets as a buyer for the Rockland store. In the early years of his going there he registered at the Morton House, a dollar a day establishment. He soon changed his quarters to the Imperial Hotel and finally to the Waldorf, where he conducted his fur business with a large clientele. In the year 1917 Mr. Davis started an antique store at the corner of Main and Winter streets. From there he moved to the Smith building on North Main street, thence to the Willoughby residence on Elm street, and finally to the New County road.

Aside from long business experience Ernest Davis was essentially a sportsman—seldom a hunter of big game, but never so much in his element as when with gun under his arm, and dog running ahead he sought the haunt of woodcock and partridge.

"I have been a hunter from boyhood," Mr. Davis told a Courier-Gazette reporter. "I do it because I like to chase the dogs and see what they bring for prey."

He formerly belonged to the Masons and Odd Fellows, and cherished that delightful period when he and Mrs. Davis were active members of the Merrymeet Club. Mr. Davis is survived by his wife the former Rose Marie Welt of Waldoboro, to whom he was married 51 years ago this month.

In the United Episcopal Parish of S.S. Peter, John and George, Rev. E. O. Kenyon, rector, the services for Sexagesima Sunday will be at St. Peter's—Holy Eucharist and sermon at 9:30 and at Church School at 10:45. Meeting of the men of the parish in the Undercroft at 4 p. m. The Bishop will be the speaker. Vespers and the Administration of Holy Confirmation at 6 p. m. The following the Rites there will be an informal reception to the Bishop and the Confirmation Class in the Undercroft. The usual Sunday services at St. John's Thomaston and St. George's, Long Cove will be omitted.

MISS HER POEMS

Port Clyde, Feb. 24. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

It is with much regret that I notice that poems from the pen of Nellie M. Ervine do not appear very frequently in your columns lately. I have always been a great admirer of her work; to me, there has seemed something very fine about it, and helpful and inspiring. I think she is one of your most gifted contributors, and here's hoping she will see this and be moved to favor us with her poems more regularly.

A bill making old age assistance available to aliens in Maine if they had lived in the State 15 consecutive years and applied for naturalization was reported Tuesday by the Legislative Welfare Committee. The measure was introduced by Senator Good (R-Monticello). Aliens are not eligible for such assistance now.

The committee also favored legislation increasing from $30 to $40 the monthly amount which the State could pay to an old age assistance recipient. Senator Friend (R-Skowhegan) sponsored the bill. A similar measure has been filed by Rep. Bubur.

Reported favorably by the Motor Vehicles Committee was a bill striking from a law the requirement that a mirror or reflector on a commercial vehicle, taxicab, truck or trailer shall be at least six inches in diameter or length.

The committee rejected proposal to increase from 40 to 50 miles an hour Maine's highway speed limit at the expiration of a war emergency speed of 35, established by executive order.

Favorably reported by the committee was a bill providing that the fine for minor infractions of the motor vehicle laws shall not exceed $50, instead of the current $10 maximum.

Doing Your Part?

Earle Achorn Reminds Passive Workers of a Familiar Quotation

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— At present ours seems to be a period of waiting, waiting but hoping that our enemies across the broad Atlantic and Pacific will never visit our shores. I am firmly convinced that our preparation in the past, our excellent Civilian Defense Organizations which have been formed, the many courses which many millions of people have taken and the general knowledge obtained by all have to a large degree prevented bombings and destruction here at home. They knew we were ready; they knew we were on our toes.

Of late we have become passive. Some are saying, "It hasn't happened. I don't believe it ever will." This kind of talk is now being felt in the way people are responding when asked to assume Defense duties when positions have to be filled as our boys enter the several branches of our armed services.

Those left behind must take up the torch. Those left behind must carry on. We can't say, "I am too old to do it." We can't say, "I'll think it over or get somebody else to do it." That somebody else is not available. Consequently the right is not ours to refuse. It is our duty to respond. When we refuse we are letting those down who are wading through the mud, plowing without and being shot at. Thus we serve if we only stand and wait. If we are ready while we wait then we haven't anything to fear.

Are you doing your part? Are you a C. D. worker? Will you be able when our boys come back victoriously to say "I helped all I could to keep those you left behind safe. I kept the faith." If you couldn't now why not be able to do so then. Volunteer to help now. Relieve the load of the few who are doing it all now.

Earle Achorn,
Commander Rockport Civilian Defense Unit.

AN INTERESTING VISIT

A reporter recently visited the Castro Walsh Plant in Camden where infant dresses are manufactured and was fascinated by the charming little frocks made from dotted swiss and other sheer material in all the pastel shades. The workers find this work most interesting and it is understood that there are openings for their experienced stitchers or for young girls who would like to learn. Attractive wages are paid to stitchers who can qualify. There are opportunities for young girls who desire to learn the business and rapid advancement can be made by those who can adapt themselves. An unusual opportunity presents itself as the business will be constantly expanding. For instance recently one of the young ladies was sent to New York City to take a designing course over a period of several weeks.

Tenant's Harbor Woman Mourns Loss of Dog Killed By Hit and Run Driver

Tenant's Harbor, Feb. 24. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

At various times I have read the appeal of animal lovers to operators of cars, and have occasion today to wonder what kind of a driver it could be that would strike down a gentle old dog nearly 12 years old, then drive off and leave him to die by the roadside. Our "Peppy," one of the kindest and gentlest of dogs; a friend to everybody. And to our knowledge he never chased a car in his life.

Peppy was more than a dog to us, he was a friend and pal. He had been our children's beloved pet and playfellow while they were growing up, we all loved him. When we found him today and lifted the kindly old head with the patient eyes glazed by a painful death, the plume of tail sodden in wet grass; the white plume that had so many times waved a welcome to visitors and friends, we could only wonder how anybody could run him down then leave him there to suffer and die; it was two days before we found him. And when we carry a pitiful little bundle of dog, needlessly destroyed, over a half mile home in your arms, it gives plenty of time for thought.

I add my appeal to those of the many other animal lovers, to all drivers, "Please be careful of our pets. We love them!"

This is what Clementine Padelford has to say of Maine Kippers in the New York Herald Tribune:

"Maine Kippers—A packer in Eastport, Me., produces a kippered herring, English style in smoke treatment and cure. It's a kipper to make the English original look to its laurels. Twelve ounces in the tin, six big, glorious halves. Delicately smoked, delicately salted, this meat of the rose-brown tints. Open the tin, let's make a meal of it with rye bread and butter and a growler of beer. Fine for a salad. But to bring out the full sweet flavor of the fish, place in a buttered shallow pan or on a piece of cooking parchment, brush with butter, bless with lemon juice. Bake in a moderate oven ten minutes and serve with more lemon, more butter if you have more to spare. Bring on the scrambled eggs, a fluffy, moist yellowness resting on a cushion of hot buttered toast. Any Englishmen present? Try these kippers from Maine and agree with us the American variety is a perfect match for its English cousin. Goodness lies impartially between the two, 'as the backbone of a herring doth lie amidst the fish'."

Remember, a roll of half-inch tape will make dozens of name tabs for the school children's coats, caps and mittens, as well as rubbers. For the latter it is best to use adhesive tape and one can also use that for other purposes. Snip it and use.

Real goodness is the need with education. Its test is the keen capacity for using knowledge for betterment in life; turning one's wisdom to be always ready for purposes in living that build and make staunch the foundation of this land and its institutions.

Out in the mid-western States of Missouri and Kansas the lovely walnut tree grows. The leaves are beautiful, the fruit excellent and the lumber from the trees is of high quality for furniture and house finishing. In 1830 there was carried from Missouri to Oregon a tiny walnut tree. This tree, less than 100 years later, produced $20,000 worth of veneer for furniture.

Socialism and Communism have been tried repeatedly in past years and have always failed. There are still a lot of people who wish to try those systems again. How do they think they can keep all men on the same level? The world was not built that way.

At a luncheon where this writer first met Sarah Orne Jewett, at the home of Mrs. James I. Field, I said to Mrs. Field, "Miss Jewett always makes me think of an American Beauty Rose." This pleased Mrs. Field very much and she said to me, "I will adopt that name for her."

Names Mrs. Delano

As Community Service Member of Price and Rationing Board

Appointment of Mrs. Leonise M. Delano as the Community Service Member of the Local War Price and Rationing Board was announced today by Morris B. Perry, chairman of the Board. This appointment is in line with a new plan established by the Office of Price Administration whereby educational activities and consumer relations in each local Board area will be supervised by a Board member.

"Selection of Mrs. Delano for this important job means that the prompt and accurate information concerning rationing and price control will be disseminated in this community," Chairman Perry said. "In getting the facts to the public we will have valuable help from the Local Defense Council."

Among the duties of the new Board member will be the appointment of a community service committee which she will head. She will also prepare a weekly report on Board activities, which will be available to the public at Board headquarters and which will be made available to recognized channels of public information such as newspapers, radio and periodicals. The Community Service Member also will establish an information center at the Board office where inquiries and complaints will be received and educational pamphlets and other literature made available.

Another function of the new member will be to stimulate activities of Board members in the field of consumer relations, such as appearances before clubs, school groups and other organizations in the Board area.

Are the wages of today creating a flood-tide of trouble for mental attitudes in future production, when this country tries to adjust business to a foundation compatible for all concerned? The very fact that Washington has probably assumed that war wages given out in excess, would be consumed by the taxes is false for this supposition has not been watertight in its working out, it has been found. Is the moral effect good for our country and our people's future?

Are there to be wasteful extravagances to come from this excessive profits business? It looks that way now.

It all dates back to pressures brought on and not repudiated at the proper trim by heads in Washington. This country will be obliged to get back to first principles and deeper right thinking free from personal and party lines is acknowledged by many thinkers.

An Autobiography of Com. G. H. Reed, D. C., U. S. N.

(Chapter XXX)
Came a day in May, 1934, when Mrs. Reed and I boarded the Dollar Line "Round the World" steamship, President Johnson, at a wharf in Wilmington, California, and, one hour later, cast off and stood out to sea on our second trip to the Far East.

Ahead of us, out there on the Pacific Ocean, aboard the U. S. transport Chaumont, was our daughter, Carolyn, bound, we didn't know where—and neither did she. Bringing up the rear in the family exodus came father and mother, also afloat on the bounding main with just as much information concerning their destination as daughter had. Behind us on the Wilmington pier stood the former Miss Emma Gene Mills of North Haven, waving us good bye and doubtless wondering if everybody in our family was ignorant of what they were doing and where they were going as the sample she had been entertaining.

Back in New York some months earlier Mrs. Reed had told me she would like to see Peiping. Several of our friends had been there and were enthusiastic about the place. Apparently it was a bit of Old China which had been left unspoiled by influx of business adventures which filled China's coastal cities and we had agreed it would be a good place for our next duty.

Accordingly I had visited Washington and requested that when my cruise in New York was up I be ordered to Peiping for duty with the Marine Guard attached to the American Legation there. The request had apparently been granted and we were on our way.

Arriving in San Francisco to await the arrival of the S. S. President Johnson on which we had transportation across the Pacific, we had found that its schedule had been disrupted by the shipping strike then in full swing at West coast ports, and nobody knew when it would make San Francisco—if ever.

We had waited in comfort at the Fairmont hotel for approximately two weeks during which time the Chaumont had arrived and departed again, and then had received a wire asking us to join the Johnson at Wilmington, Calif. The Dollar Line had given us tickets to Los Angeles, and we had found time to visit friends in Whittier and Palo Alto, before the ship was ready to sail. Now at last we had embarked.

To explain the family's apparent lack of cohesion and absence of any definite knowledge of objectives in our wanderings, it is necessary to say that when it comes to furnishing commercial transportation for dependents, the United States Government operates under the delusion that when an officer's daughter attains a certain age, she can be ignored thereafter. Nothing could be further from the truth, as many an income taxpayer can testify, but it explains why our daughter was out there on the rolling waves ahead of us, headed for no place in particular, and rapidly widening the gap between us.

An officer's family can travel on a Navy transport at no expense except for board, which is figured at a Navy rate of about $1.25 per day. Being prevented by rules and regulations from purchasing commercial transportation for my grown up girl, the department had issued authorization for her to make the trip from Norfolk, Va., to my ultimate destination on the Asiatic Station via the transport Chaumont, which left the east coast a month in advance of our own departure, and so accounts for her presence on the western ocean ahead of us. Because my own orders read: "You will proceed—and report to the C. in C. Asiatic Fleet, for such duty as may be assigned you" etc. etc., it will further explain why none of us knew what our ultimate destination might be. Such a situation among civilians traveling road might give cause

A Prayer, In Verse

Mrs. Susie B. Hunter of Tenants Harbor has this paper's thanks for two poems—one, a prayer, by George Willard Bronte, being here reproduced:

God of our fathers, intervene;
Stretch forth Thy staying hands;
Blood of our brothers flows between
The bounds of kindred lands.
And tears, oh the tears of mothers
And wives,
Are rusting the blades of our harvest knives.
God of our fathers, grant us peace—
Smother the fiery brands.
Christ, Lord and Master, Prince of Peace,
Vanquish the god of war,
Bid the red clouds of rage subside
Where mad iron eagles soar.
Silence the blasts of the hellish siege guns.
Ceasing the slaying of thousands of sons,
Christ, Lord and Master, heal our wounds—
Silence the battle's roar.
Lord of the Nations, bring us years
Of peace, good will and toil;
Lead us from out this vale of tears—
Bless Thou the corpse-strawed soil.
End the wild orgy of carnage and hate;
Steer to safe harbors the wrecked
ships of state;
Lord of the Nations, hear our prayer—
Quiet the World's turmoil.

James Wentworth was given a party Saturday night to celebrate his 20th birthday. Many of the younger set attended. He and Mrs. Wentworth have been spending a few weeks here prior to his joining the armed forces.

Elmer True was in town Monday and that night attended the birthday supper of Seaside Chapter, O.E.S., in Camden.

Mrs. Emilie Hobbs has been with her sister, Miss Edna Payson, in Rockland, for a few days.

Mrs. Helen Wentworth and Mrs. Elsie Wilson assisted at the school-house for registration on Ration Book 2. It was a busy place.

Miss Pauline True was home from Manchester, Conn., for a week-end visit.

for a little brow wrinkling, but not in a Navy family. All we had to do was to sit tight and continue to eat regularly. Somewhere, soon, we would meet again and it didn't much matter where that place might be. Meantime we steamed along and later while Carolyn was eating avocados down in Guam her parents were sampling the sukiyaki dinners up in Kobe, Japan.

The Johnson was making a round the world cruise and was crowded with people from everywhere engaged in having a good time. We made many friends among passengers one of whom was Ram Chandra, an Indian Prince, on his way from Hollywood to his home in Bombay. Ram Chandra is an Oxford graduate and he smoked a pipe and played good bridge. Some of the ladies on board made a fuss over him and were elaborately careful to address him by his title. He asked me to call him Ram and I did so and when his laundry didn't get up to him in time for the birthday dinner he gave, he borrowed a clean dress shirt from me for the occasion. At his dinner he served a liquor distilled from rose leaves and as a novelty he dished the right thumb of every guest with a rare East Indian perfume.

Somewhere between Kobe and Shanghai I received radio orders from the Augusta, flagship of the C. in C., to continue to Manila for duty at the Navy Yard in Cavite. I thereupon radioed my daughter to disembark at Manila and await us there. Our ship put in to Hong Kong for a brief stop over and a few days later we drew alongside a beautiful new concrete pier just off the Lunette in Manila and had a family reunion.

What made it exceptionally good was the fact that Commander and Mrs. P. L. Chaffin, old friends of ours, who had been there with us 10 years previously, had entertained our daughter before we arrived and insisted on taking us home also until such time as we could find a place for ourselves. That is a Navy custom which solves a lot of difficulties in getting established on a new station, it's only drawback being that not always can the courtesy be returned to the same people who extend it.

Once more we were all back in the Philippine Islands, just 10 years, lacking two months, from the time we had left there before. I had expected to find myself in Peiping instead of Cavite but I wasn't sorry to see the Philippines again. After a few months there I thought I could effect another change and eventually wind up where I wanted to be.

I hadn't told my family, but one of the attractions the Chinese capital had for me at that time was the fact that, once there, the rate of exchange as fixed by executive orders from Washington for diplomats and members of the Armed Services serving in China after the United States abandoned the gold standard, was 4.20. That would give me approximately $2730 in Chinese money each month, and I knew right where I could use it. (To Be Continued)

SERMONETTE

Fateful Days

As an American, if you follow the trend of the war closely, you became impressed with the fact that there have never been so many factors involved in any previous war in history. Men in all the United Nations are trying not only to win the war, but to look ahead and make certain the peace, in post war days; trying to find the solution to daily problems and those of the days to come, future days, safer days for all mankind; honestly searching their hearts to determine what is best.

It is folly to keep asking, "What are we fighting for these fateful days?" If any there be, so dull as to not understand that, it will be a waste of time to explain.

A man once asked Grover Cleveland a question three times and then said, "I still do not understand it."

Mr. Cleveland stopped and said, "Sir! I can furnish you with the explanation, but not the power for you to comprehend it."

President Roosevelt, Vice President Wallace, Wendell Wilkie and ex-President Hoover have recently delivered addresses, in this country which will rank with Winston Churchill's speech to the Congress; in the days when historians gather up the jewels of these fateful days.

There is a question, however, all may ask, however lowly their status may be and this contains the solution to all the problems, "What can I do?"

This war impinges on everyone, in every way. Shortages of food, clothing, fuel, doctors, nurses and money touch all alike. They affect every State city and town, every individual. Shortage of manpower in the armed forces, on the farms call attention to the closeness of interwoven life. Essentials of life have been disturbed.

"How can I tell what I ought to do?" That was answered when the world was young. Win the war first, then the peace. How? "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths." That is the promise and the solution in these fateful days.

Word was received here last Friday morning informing us about the death of Royal Luther of Southport. Mr. Luther served years in the Lighthouse Department and was well known all along the coast. He was always a welcome visitor at the station if he came on an inspection tour or just came to look over station equipment. It was always the same. He was genial and had a cheerful greeting for all. Mr. Luther was interested in his work, a fine workman faithful and active to the end. Retired from service for years, yet he maintained an interest in the work and department he so many years gave his best to keep in excellent condition. We have missed his calls and our sympathy is extended to his family.

Dotes On Gulls' Eggs

Friendship Man Prizes Them With a "Snifter"—Owned Trained Crane

Friendship, Feb. 24.
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:
So much has been said of late concerning the use of gulls' eggs as a food, I think your readers will enjoy this item about an aged and esteemed citizen and the part that gulls' eggs have played in his long and eventful career.

Dwight Z. Wotton has for more than 60 years depended wholly on the gulls for his egg supply. Summer or Winter he is seen on the outermost islands with a bushel basket gathering these precious edibles. He claims they are especially tasty in an egg nog snifter which he mixes each night before retiring.

Occasionally he cooks eggs from other sea birds. Next to a gull egg, he prefers a good fresh crane egg. I believe Mr. Wotton to be the only man in this country ever to own a trained crane. This bird was finally lost at sea while on a fishing trip with Hobbie Stevens. Mrs. R. R. Thompson.

here's why—

Sure, I gave to the Red Cross last year — everybody did.

Didn't think much about it, or know much about it either. Bandages, knitting sweaters, and the like, that's what it seemed like then and I was for it just as a matter of course.

This year it's different. I've seen the Red Cross at work.

Saw it working out at the plant the night of the big fire, when a lot of the boys were laid out cold. Some of them wouldn't be around today except for the Red Cross being right there from the start, ready with first aid, and with an ambulance and canteen and a bunch of men and women who knew what to do and how to do it. I'll say they were good.

Then, when my boy, Ben, drops his job and goes to soldiering, I get another angle on the Red Cross. Get it in a letter from a Red Cross guy who'd set up shop in Ben's camp. Opened my eyes to a lot of things about my own boy that I didn't know. He'd sure taken a pack of worries with him into the army. And this Mr. Field Director seems to have the job of getting wise to a man's troubles and doing something about them. Not only there, but at the home end too.

It's a long story, but it came out fine, thanks to that "trouble buster" at camp and a straight-shooting woman here that just calls it Red Cross Home Service. I'll say it was home service. Just ask my missus.

We got a new daughter-in-law now and I'm a grandpop and Ben goes back to camp with his eyes shining and his chest out. It might have been pretty bad though.

That was back last Summer, and a lot of things have been happening since. The war's come terribly close. If you've got a boy out there you know what I mean.

Last week we got a letter from Sergeant Ben that his mother wouldn't take a million for. Between the lines, you can tell that our boys are giving those devils everything they've got and taking it too. Must have been pretty bad. One thing the censor let through gave me another Red Cross angle.

Seems Mr. Field Director and his bunch have gone right through with my boy's outfit. Been in the hottest spots in every show with them. Not with guns, but doing a lot of other things that add up, too. They're there with what's needed when it's needed, just like they were at that fire of ours. With the kind of things that may seem pretty small to us at home, but go big in a foxhole. "Dad" writes Ben, "Think of the Red Cross as a he-man organization. Dig when the War Fund comes around next time."

You bet I will. This year I'm giving double.

Will you give double too?
